Student Responsibilities for Study Abroad

1. Meet with faculty adviser to discuss how to obtain Passports and Visas for travel.

All participants in CSUF study abroad programs must hold valid passports. You are responsible for obtaining your own passport and visa. U.S citizens may apply for passports at most U.S. Post Offices. If you already have a passport, please make sure that it is valid for at least six months beyond your planned return from your stay abroad. If necessary, renew your passport now.

Visas are immigration documents that give you permission to enter a country for a specific purpose and for a specified period of time. If you must obtain a student visa, you may apply for the visa at the local consulate in Los Angeles for the country you are going to. Follow these instructions to obtain a visa:

A. Call the consulate to inquire about the procedures that must be followed to obtain a visa.
B. Inform the consular official of your nationality (where your passport is from); there may be different requirements for obtaining a visa based on your nationality.
C. To obtain a visa, you usually need to bring your passport and your Letter of Invitation from the host university, along with the visa application. Some countries require additional documentation to issue a visa (health record, birth certificate, etc.). That is why it is very important for you to call ahead to find out exactly what you need to bring with you when you apply for the visa.
D. It is recommended that you apply for the visa at least 3-4 weeks prior to your date of departure. Sometimes consulates can "rush" the process and issue visas within 48 hours. However, there may be an extra charge for "rush" service. Visa prices vary. Check with a consular official regarding the cost of the visa.
E. Remember to ask for office hours, as well as directions when you call the consulate.

2. Supply Airline/Transportation information to your faculty adviser if traveling alone.
3. Obtain Airline/Transportation information from your faculty adviser if traveling with the group.
4. Submit medical, physical, psychological, and dietary needs before departure (as part of the application) to your adviser. Also share any concerns with your adviser.
5. Discuss with faculty adviser what constitutes acceptable behavior and conduct while in the program, and what the consequences are should you violate these standards.

During your participation in any Cal State Fullerton study abroad program, you are responsible not only for your own personal conduct, but also for how your conduct reflects on Cal State Fullerton, the State of California, and the United States of America. You are, in essence, an "ambassador" of California throughout your stay. You should therefore learn the rules of appropriate conduct in your host country and abide by them.

Examples of some unacceptable behaviors in any country include: cheating or plagiarism in your academic work; forgery or misuse of legal documents; physical abuse of property; sale or possession of illegal drugs; engaging in lewd behavior; failure to attend classes to the extent normally required; violation of the rules and regulations of the host university; violation of the laws of the host country; conduct which endangers others; flagrant disregard of local customs, mores or beliefs which might result in offending or antagonizing host country citizens or officials. Serious violations of acceptable behavior may result in your disenrollment from the program. Any illegal act by a student participant will result in immediate expulsion from the program without any possibility of financial refund or chance to complete any academic credit requirements.

6. Read the Department of State Travel Warnings for information about the current political and environmental climate of the country (ies) you will be visiting. This can be found on the State Department Website.

7. Sign the Consent & Release for Study Abroad and the Permission for Emergency Treatment forms as part of your application.

8. Obtain a detailed trip itinerary, indicating potential "side trips" from your adviser.

9. Obtain emergency information that you should have while you are abroad, such as local U.S. Embassy & Consulate addresses and telephone numbers, the names and phone numbers of whom to contact in case of emergency overseas, such as the name and 24-hour phone number of the program director/leader.

10. Carry photocopies of important documents with you overseas (passport, birth certificate, plane tickets, traveler's checks, International Student ID Card, Driver's license, numbers for lost/stolen credit cards, telephone number to the health insurance carrier, health card). Keep original copies of your passport and other identification documents locked in a secure location at the overseas site. Only carry a copy of your passport with you.

11. Discuss the academic expectations of participants in the program, including information about whether or not any extra field trips are required with your adviser.

12. Obtain detailed information about your financial responsibilities as participants in the program from your adviser.

13. Obtain detailed housing information, including information about any household items you might want to bring with you, from your adviser.

14. Discuss "culture shock" and cultural adjustment issues with your adviser. Follow your adviser's recommendation and obtain culture-specific reading materials for review before departure.

15. Obtain packing information (what to bring/what weather to expect) from your adviser.

16. Discuss with faculty adviser relevant Medical Requirements and Concerns including discussions about:

   a. Mandatory physical health examination prior to departure.
   b. Differences in medical services offered in the host country.
   d. Food safety issues.
   e. Medical insurance coverage (mandatory throughout participation in a study abroad program).
   f. International Student Identification Card - Mandatory to ensure emergency evacuation and repatriation coverage.
g. Packing and carrying personal medications and medical supplies overseas.
h. Viral infections carried by insects known to be in the host country.
j. Some health guides that are available to you:
   i. Health Information for International Travel, is available from: U.S. Department of Health & Human Services, Public Health Service, enter for Disease Control & Prevention, National Center for Infectious Diseases, Division of Quarantine, Atlanta, GA 30333.
   ii. The International Travel Health Guide is available from: Travel Medicine, Inc., 351 Pleasant Street, Suite 312, Northhampton, MA 01060, phone (413) 584-0381.

17. Discuss with your adviser and make yourself aware of the Laws and Customs of the host country you are traveling to. Remember that you are subject to the laws of the country you are visiting throughout the duration of your international travels. The State Department provides this kind of information on a web page: http://travel.state.gov/travel/cis_pa_tw/tw/tw_1764.html. In addition, Culturgrams (www.culturgram.com), published by Brigham Young University, also provide some useful information. In addition, most countries have offices of tourism in Los Angeles that may be able to send students free brochures and maps that may prove to be quite informative.

18. If you have disabilities or special needs, obtain support from your adviser. The Executive Order 715, Attachment A-3 (Risk Management Guidelines: Off-Campus Activities - International Travel) does not address this specifically, but says to review the CSU International Programs Policies and Procedures. The CSU International Programs Policies and Procedures are as follows and can be used in the selection of students for the study abroad program:

Students with special needs, such as physically disabled students, or students with learning disabilities, are identified during the selection process. The International Programs makes every effort to accommodate such students in cooperation with host institutions abroad. Students with these kinds of special needs are encouraged to identify themselves early in the application process to make adequate planning possible. In some cases, adequate facilities or services for students with specific types of disabilities may not be available at their chosen overseas study centers. (IP Bulletin, 1998-2000, page 14)

For additional information as well as examples of how other universities address such concerns, please refer to the SAFETI Program Audit Checklist at: http://www.globaled.us/safeti/auditchklst.html and review sections on Support for Participants with Disabilities and Support for Students with Special Needs.
19. Consider these Safety Issues:

a. In airports, do not leave your luggage unattended and do NOT agree to look after packages or suitcases for individuals you do not know well. If someone approaches you to make such a request, tell security immediately. Take all questions from airport personnel seriously and do not make jokes in response to security questions.

b. Carry your passport in a safe place. Some countries require that you carry it with you at all times.

c. Don't flash money or documents in public. Be discreet.

d. Always keep your resident faculty advisors / group leaders informed of your whereabouts. When you travel independently, give a copy of your itinerary to a friend.

e. Have an emergency financial plan. Carry a credit card, for example, to use for emergency purchases.

f. Quickly familiarize yourself with the host campus/city layout. Take a tour if one is offered.

g. Know where the public telephones are located.

h. Meet first-time dates in a public place instead of at your home.

i. Walk in well-lighted, populated areas.

j. Do not ever leave book bags or packages unattended.

k. Be alert; look around you. Walk with confidence.

l. Try not to walk with your arms/hands full of heavy packages.

m. Jog/exercise with a friend.

n. Travel with a companion whenever possible, and familiarize yourself with the public transportation system to avoid appearing like a vulnerable tourist. Travel in daylight hours if you must travel alone.

o. Take precautions when walking. Stay near crowded areas. Do not attempt to cross through parks or other large, dark or deserted areas.

p. Be careful how late you return home at night. Know when public transportation ceases to operate at night in the host city, and return home before then.

q. Be as inconspicuous in dress and demeanor as possible. Wear moderate colors and conservative clothing. Avoid American logos on your belongings and clothing. Keep the volume of your voice down in public places. Avoid being labeled a "loud and obnoxious American."

r. Keep away from political demonstrations, particularly those directed toward the United States. If you see a situation developing, resist the temptation to satisfy your curiosity and investigate what is happening. Instead, walk the other way.

20. Discuss Sexual Harassment with your adviser prior to departure. Please see the SAFETI Audit Checklist and read the section dedicated to Sexual Harassment and Assault under the Personal Safety and Adjustment subheading.

21. Women travelers should obtain advice from their faculty adviser.
Women traveling may encounter more difficulties than men. Never travel alone, and try to understand the role of the sexes in the culture in which you are traveling. Observe how the host country's women dress and act. What may be appropriate and friendly behavior in the U.S. may bring you unwanted attention in another culture. Remember to speak clearly and emphatically if you want to be left alone. Do not wear expensive clothing or jewelry. In many countries it is advisable to avoid wearing clothing that could be considered provocative. In some parts of the world, mere eye contact from a woman is considered flirtation. When you check into a hotel, notice who gets into the elevator with you. If you are uncomfortable, get off the elevator. Have your room key in hand so you won't have to fumble for it in a dark hallway. ALWAYS lock your door.

22. Develop an Emergency Action Plan. Be advised of how to handle a crisis if one should arise during the study abroad program period. Go over the Emergency Action Plan with your adviser before departure.
